PREAMBLE

WHEREAS:

- A. This policy is adopted in order to bring uniformity into alternative dispute resolution in relation to disputes arising out of domain names registration with the view that the interests of the parties can be preserved in settings other than the traditional judicial dispute resolution method in court.
- B. The policy is intended to provide legitimate rights holders with an efficient and cost-effective means of protecting their rights. It seeks to balance this protection against the rights of the current domain name Registrants, making provision for such issues such as reverse hijacking.
- C. The Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) methods which are recognized in this Policy include Mediation and Arbitration.
- D. Mediation in general terms refers to a process in which a neutral third person, called a mediator, acts to encourage and to assist in the resolution of a dispute between two (2) or more parties. This is an informal and non-adversarial process. The objective is to help the disputing parties reach a mutually acceptable agreement between or among themselves on all or any part of the issues in dispute. Decision-making authority rests with the parties, not the mediator. The mediator assists the parties in identifying issues, fostering joint problem-solving, exploring settlement alternatives, and in other ways consistent with these activities.
- E. Arbitration in general terms is a process in which a neutral third person or a panel, called an arbitrator or an arbitration panel, considers the facts and arguments which are presented by the parties and renders a decision.
- F. This Alternative Dispute Resolution Policy (the "ADRP") has been adopted by the Registry ("KENIC"), and sets forth the terms and conditions in connection with a dispute between a registrant and any party other than the Registry over the registration and use of an internet domain name registered in relation to the .ke ccTLD;

Alternative Dispute Resolution Rules

Domain name dispute resolution

3. (1) In choosing a domain name, a registrant warrants, amongst others, that registering the name will not infringe upon or violate the rights of any third party.
- (2) A Registrant shall submit to proceedings under the rules if a Complainant claims, in accordance with the procedure, that-
 - (a) The Complainant has rights in respect of a name or mark which is identical or similar to the domain name and, under the ownership of the Registrant, is an abusive registration; or
 - (b) The domain name under the ownership of the Registrant is an offensive registration.
- (3) The Complainant shall prove on a balance of probabilities that the required elements in paragraph (2) are present.
- (4) A Complainant may file a single complaint in regard to more than one domain name provided that all such domain names have been registered under the same Registrant.
- (5) Where a Complainant has already initiated proceedings relating to the same domain name and involving the same Parties in a court of law, the Complainant shall not file proceedings under this Policy, unless in pursuance of a court order.
- (6) Dispute resolution under these rules shall not emphasize on technicalities or procedure and may waive any where necessary.

Evidence of Abusive or Offensive Registration

4. (1) Factors which may indicate that the domain name is an abusive registration include:
 - (a) circumstances indicating that the Registrant has registered or otherwise acquired the domain name primarily to –
 - (i) sell, rent or otherwise transfer the domain name to a Complainant or to a competitor of the Complainant, or any third Party, for valuable

- consideration in excess of the Registrant's reasonable out-of-pocket expenses directly associated with acquiring or using domain names;
 - (ii) block the registration of a name or mark in which the Complainant has rights;
 - (iii) disrupt unfairly the business of the Complainant; or
 - (iv) prevent the Complainant from exercising their rights;
- (b) circumstances indicating that the Registrant is using, or has registered, the domain name in a way that leads people or businesses to believe that the domain name is registered to, operated or authorized by, or otherwise connected with the Complainant;
- (c) evidence, in combination with other circumstances indicating that the domain name in dispute is an abusive registration and that the Registrant is engaged in a pattern of making abusive registrations;
- (d) false or incomplete contact details provided by the Registrant in the Whois database;
- (e) domain name is identical or confusingly similar to a trademark or service mark in which the Complainant has rights;
- (f) evidence that the domain name was registered as a result of a relationship between the Complainant and the Registrant, and the Complainant has –
- (i) been using the domain name registration exclusively; and
 - (ii) paid for the registration or renewal of the domain name registration.
- (g) any other factor that in the opinion of the Arbitrator/the Court may be indicative of abusive registration.
- (2) An offensive registration may be inferred if the domain name advocates hatred that is based on race, ethnicity, gender or religion or that constitutes incitement to cause harm.
- (3) There shall be a rebuttable presumption of abusive registration if the Complainant proves that the Registrant has been found to have made an abusive registration in three or more disputes in the 12 months preceding the date the dispute was filed.

How a Registrant may indicate that domain name is not an abusive registration

5. (1) Factors which may indicate that the domain name is not an abusive registration, include: -

 - (ii) been commonly known by the name or legitimately connected with a mark which is identical or similar to the domain name; or
 - (iii) made legitimate non-commercial or fair use of the domain name;

(b) the domain name is used generically or in a descriptive manner and the Registrant is making fair use of it;

(c) that the Registrant has demonstrated fair use, which use may include websites operated solely in tribute to or fair criticism of a person or business:

Provided that the burden of proof shifts to the Registrant to show that the domain name is not an abusive registration if the domain name is identical to the mark in which the Complainant asserts rights, without any addition; or

(d) any other factor that in the opinion of the Arbitrator may be indicative that the domain name is not an abusive or offensive registration.

(3) Trading in domain names for profit, and holding a large portfolio of domain names, are of themselves lawful activities. The Arbitrator shall review each case on its merits.

(4) Sale of traffic, that is, connecting domain names to parking pages and earning click-per-view revenue, is not of itself objectionable under this Policy. However, the Arbitrator shall take into account:

b) the nature of the advertising links on any parking page associated with the Domain Name; or

c) that the use of the Domain Name is ultimately the Registrant's responsibility.
